Concurrent Sessions

1A. Energy extraction's impact on Native Americans' health

Room TBD

David Line, PhD, Eastern Washington University, Assistant Professor
Mary-Katherine Smith McNatt, DrPh, AT Still University, Chair & Associate Professor

Energy extraction has positive and negative impacts on the health equity of Native Americans in rural areas. The impacts include providing revenue, jobs, causing environmental changes, and changing cultural heritages. This presentation explores how production of energy and energy costs impact the health equity of Native Americans in rural areas.

Opportunities for Health Equity in Rural Tribal Oklahoma

Denna Wheeler, Ph.D., Oklahoma State University Center for Health Sciences, the Center for Rural Health, Clinical Associate Professor of Rural Health

William Pettit, D.O., Oklahoma State University Center for Health Sciences, Dean, Oklahoma State University College of Osteopathic Medicine - Cherokee Nation Campus

Learn about the physician pipeline partnership between the Oklahoma State University College of Osteopathic Medicine and Cherokee Nation. The pipeline includes early recruitment in rural native communities, a medical school campus constructed and operated in partnership on Cherokee Nation land, and tribal affiliated medical residency programs.

1B. Creating a Culture of Health in Appalachia

Room TBD

Julie Marshall, PhD, Appalachian Regional Commission, Senior Economist

Eric Stockton, Appalachian Regional Commission, Health Program Manager

This initiative documents population health and disparities in the Appalachian Region as well as assets and barriers to achieving positive health outcomes. It also identifies and explores Bright Spots, and offers practical strategies to community leaders, funders, and policy makers pursuing health equity and improved population health in rural communities.

Healthalachia: Rural Appalachian Youth Creating Solutions

Frances Feltner, DNP, University of Kentucky Center of Excellence in Rural Health, Director

Melissa Slone, University of Kentucky Center of Excellence in Rural Health, Director of Inter-disciplinary Research

Beth Bowling, University of Kentucky Center of Excellence in Rural Health, Rural Project Manager

Healthalachia, a student-based research initiative, engaged students from three rural high schools to identify a health or social problem at their school and create a research-based solution. Students developed a research question and implementation strategies, secured resources and personnel, created an evaluation process and measured outcomes to complete their projects.

1C. Evaluating with an Equity Lens in Rural Communities

Room TBD

Samantha Tucker, Healthcare Georgia Foundation, Evaluation Manager

Michelle Kegler, DrPH, Emory Prevention Research Center, Rollins School of Public Health, Emory University, Director

April Hermstad, Emory Prevention Research Center, Rollins School of Public Health, Emory University, Senior Public Health Program Associate

How do you know your organization is addressing health equity and closing the gap? The answer is evaluating with an equity lens. Join as Healthcare Georgia Foundation and Emory Prevention Research Center discuss identifying and measuring equity outcomes and indicators in the context of rural, multi-sectoral Community Health Partnerships.

Capacity Building in Rural Communities to Improve Health Outcomes

Calvin Allen, Rural Forward NC at the Foundation for Health Leadership and Inn, Director

Brandy Bynum Dawson, Rural Forward NC at the Foundation for Health Leadership and Inn, Associate Director

This informative session will highlight effective services and tools employed to build capacity and develop resources that amplify the impact of rural leaders, organizations, and coalitions in rural North Carolina. The session will provide examples of healthier, more sustainable rural communities with increased capacity to solve their own health problems.

11:15 a.m. – 12:30 p.m.

Concurrent Session

2A. FORHP Session

Room TBD

2B. Premature death disparities by rurality, race, and ethnicity

Room TBD

Katy Kozhimannil, PhD, MPA, University of Minnesota Rural Health Research Center, School of Public Health, Associate Professor and Director

Leslie Marsh, BS, MSN, MBA, RN, Lexington Regional Health Center, CEO

Carrie Henning-Smith, PhD, MPH, MSW, University of Minnesota Rural Health Research Center, School of Public Health, Assistant Professor and Deputy Director

Rural communities are increasingly diverse, with 20% of rural residents being people of color. In this session, we will present new research on racial and ethnic disparities in premature death and other aspects of health and healthcare among rural residents. We will then discuss implications, including a community-based provider perspective.

Rural focus in state maternal mortality review committees

Julia Interrante, University of Minnesota, PhD Student

Katy Kozhimannil, PhD, MPA, University of Minnesota, Associate Professor

Amanda Corbett, University of Minnesota, Researcher

Rural women experience barriers to maternity care and have worse outcomes. Maternal mortality review committees are forming in response to rising maternal deaths. This session will show committees existed in 47 states by 2018; only three mentioned rurality specifically. Rural representation is needed to inform geographically-tailored efforts to reverse trends.

2C. Health, Justice, and the Role of Civil Rights Law in Public Health

Room TBD

Dawn Pepin, JD, CDC, Public Health Analyst - Legal

Samantha Bent Weber, JD, Georgia Institute of Technology/Georgia State University, PhD Student

Discrimination contributes to significant health disparities in the US today including rural communities. Outcomes such as lower paying jobs and limited educational opportunities all contribute to health inequities. This presentation will highlight variations in civil rights laws across the 50 states and will draw together laws and public health data.

Voting rights and implications on rural health equity

David Line, PhD, Eastern Washington University, Assistant Professor

Mary-Katherine Smith McNatt, DrPh, A.T. Still University, Chair & Associate Professor

With an appreciation of “health in all policies,” the importance of representation in the development of policies has become evident. Recent voter suppression has impacted the health equity in rural communities. This session looks at disenfranchisement methods, the implications on rural health, and practices used to address disenfranchisement.

12:30 p.m. – 1:30 p.m.

Networking Lunch

1:30 p.m. – 2:30 p.m.

Where We’ve Been, Where We’re Going

Public health and healthcare have increasingly focused on health equity as a means of achieving improved population health. Access to health insurance and healthcare are not sufficient to eliminate health disparities. This panel will present public health leaders’ perspectives on health equity and implications for rural health.

2:30 p.m. – 2:45 p.m.

Networking Break, Poster Session

2:45 – 4:00 p.m.

Concurrent Session

3A. Community-Cancer Center Collaborations to Impact Rural Cancer Disparities

Room TBD

Robin Vanderpool, DrPH, CHES, University of Kentucky, Associate Professor, Department of Health, Behavior & Society

Deanna Kepka, PhD, University of Utah Huntsman Cancer Institute, Assistant Professor

Tracy Omega, PhD, Dartmouth Norris Cotton Cancer Center, Associate Professor

This session, presented by three National Cancer Institute-designated cancer centers serving different rural constituents (Appalachia, Inter-Mountain West, and New England), will focus on building capacity among rural community and clinical partners to conduct cancer control research aimed at improving disparities in HPV vaccination, lung cancer screening, and cancer survivorship outcomes.

Embracing Health Equity: A Place-Based Approach

Lisa Medellin, Healthcare Georgia Foundation, Director of Programs

Arlene Parker Goldson, Partnership for Southern Equity, Just Health Manager

Nathaniel Smith, Partnership for Southern Equity, Chief Equity Officer/Founder

The Two Georgias Initiative—a rural program for 11 communities in Georgia focused on engaging local coalitions/health partnerships on embracing equity in the context of addressing local healthcare issues.

3B. Tools for Success: Addressing the Rural Opioid Crisis

Room TBD

Alana Knudson, PhD, NORC's Walsh Center for Rural Health Analysis, Program Area Director

Kristine Sande, Rural Health Information Hub, Program Director

Explore new tools from the Rural Health Information Hub (RHInhub) and the NORC Walsh Center for Rural Health Analysis designed to help rural communities successfully address the opioid crisis. Learn about factors, including social determinants of health that influence opioid use and access to treatment.

3C. Strategies for academic - rural community health equity partnerships

Room TBD

Matthew Tobey, MD, Massachusetts General Hospital, Fellowship Director

Large academic health centers have historically neglected low-resource rural communities. In this session, we describe the lessons learned from a successful partnership between a large teaching hospital and a resource-limited rural community. Topics will include cultural humility, Indian Health Service partnership strategies, and tribal partnerships.

Equity Begins at Home: Lessons from a CAH Searching for Equity

Tammy Moore, DNP, Summit Pacific Medical Center, Chief Clinical Officer

A light is shining on equity in rural America and we believe that though overdue, there are methods which can help regions overcome barriers. Learn about a critical access hospital in Western Washington State who looked internally at inequity and used those lessons learned for the good of their community.

4:00 – 5:15 p.m.

Speaker – Healthy People 2030
